Hemington Leaving JESD

By WILL E. THOMAS

Jefferson Elementary School District Supt. Herb Hemington Tuesday night told trustees he had accepted the superintendency of the three-campus El Dorado Union High School District in Placerville.

Hemington contacted Tuesday morning, confirmed that he would leave the Daly-City Colma district. Mrs. Beverly Forrester, JESD board chairwoman said the board was expected to release him from his contract when it meets tonight.

Hemington's four year contract has two years remaining.

Mrs. Forrester said Hemington wants to terminate his local contract as of July 1, but she said he agreed to stay longer if needed.

Hemington had been visited last Wednesday by three members of the El Dorado County school district. They offered him a contract then. Hemington later acknowledged, but he put off a decision until after he and his family visited the community last weekend.

He returned Monday with his decision, contingent upon the JESD board releasing him from his contract.

Hemington, who came from an assistant superintendency in San Jose's Oak Grove District, said he was "torn" over the decision to move. But family preferences prevailed, it is understood.

Mrs. Forrester said the Hemingtons have a vacation cabin in the nearby Tahoe area and usually spend their summers there.

Hemington had been accused several weeks ago by the JESD board and some members of the community with being unresponsive to them.

However, he had been "noticeably getting involved with the community in the past two months," Mrs. Forrester said, "and he enjoyed it."

In fact, Hemington went to the recent state PTA convention in Sacramento as a Jefferson Council of PTAs delegate.

Last Thursday night he addressed the 17th District (San Mateo County) PTA's annual dinner on his experiences at the convention.

Hemington reiterated that he had "very mixed feelings" about leaving.

"We have made a lot of progress here," he said Tuesday morning, after finally arriving to work late after his station wagon broke down in San Mateo enroute from his San Jose home to Daly City.

"This is a real good school district . . . and we have a good, hard-working, conscientious school board."

But the motivation for the change is the family, he pointed out.

"We're an outdoors family," he said, noting that three of the four youngsters still at home (two are in

Representation Election

AFT's Biggest Gun Shows Up in D.C.

The American Federation of Teachers sent in its biggest gun Tuesday in the war for the right to represent the 500 teachers in the Jefferson High School District.

Albert Shanker, president of the 500,000-member national affiliate of the AFL-CIO, came to Daly City from New York to speak to the teachers, who will vote Wednesday on their choice for a collective bargaining agent.

The vote will be the first in the district under SB 160, a law that allows teachers to select an organization to represent them in negotiations with the school districts.

The law also establishes that agreements between teachers and schools be bilateral, that is, they are now binding on both sides.

Also vieing to represent the teachers is the Jefferson Union High School District Teachers Association/California Teachers Association (CTA). The state organization's president was in Daly City Friday to address the teachers.

Shanker said at a press conference Tuesday morning that the election should postpone for two years and possibly end the squabbling between the two organizations.

The AFT has an image as a more militant organization than the CTA, which has criticized the AFT for being "less professional" than the state association.

"The CTA is a labor organization," Shanker said. "If you walk like a duck and talk like a duck, you're a duck."

Shanker said the AFT would better represent the teachers than the 150,000-member state organization because the AFT has better local leadership and can call on diverse groups for support nationally.

"Teachers should look to the record," he said. "They should see which union represents the teachers and which the administration; which can muster the greatest amount of support, not just from teachers, but from other groups as well."

He said that during the consent elections that will take place in districts in California during the next few months, the AFT expects to add 75,000 members and increase in size two to two and a half times.

Asked which union would be more likely to put an end to strikes, Shanker said, "I think when teachers are badly mistreated then you have strikes. If you have a strong organization, you have a much better chance of avoiding strikes."

The president of the United Federation of Teachers in New York City and vice president of the New York City Central Labor Council, Shanker is considered a powerful figure in New York state and city politics.

He also appeared this week in Fullerton, which is conducting consent elections Wednesday, as well.

In the Tamalpais District, with three challenge votes contested, it appears that AFT narrowly defeated CTA in its recent election.

In Enterprise, which is near Redding, the CTA defeated the AFT.

Mission Street Fame Said Faded

Mission Street in Daly City no longer enjoys fame and fortune as a shopping street, a consultant team told a joint meeting of the Daly City council and Planning Commission Thursday.

"There's simply no 'there' there," said Michael D'Amico, principal consultant in the DASA joint venture team.

Once Mission Street was "the" place to locate one's business. It came as close to the center of town as any place could, even though it was not centrally located.

This no longer is true.

Shoppers have deserted the area in favor of shopping centers in other areas, the experts said.

"You've got a problem area here. No longer does (Mission Street) respond to the needs of developers, or the market," D'Amico pointed out.

If anything is to be done to revitalize Mission Street and Junipero Serra Boulevard, the city will have to step in — with manpower and money.

Without city aid, the areas simply will continue to disintegrate, D'Amico said he feels.

One obstacle, which is causing planners in the two redevelopment areas to groan loudly, is the target area boundaries set by the city's Redevelopment Agency-City D'Amico called the redevelopment boundaries, which prohibit any redevelopment activity within residential areas of the city, "politically drawn."

But he assured the officials he could work within the boundaries, although it does present some problems in drafting a viable redevelopment program.

The natural thing a planner would want to do is link the Junipero Serra commercial street with Mission Street, via John Daly Boulevard, he said.

Unfortunatley, John Daly Boulevard — a main west-east corridor between the Top of the Hill Mission Street to the Bay Area Rapid Transit station — is lined with homes.

Recent attempts to rezone two blocks on the southwest side of the street for a parking lot failed when residents declared the proposal a first step toward total redevelopment of the residential area.

D'Amico agreed discussions about redevelopment in residential areas is always a touchy subject.

An alternative, however, might be to "educate the people" and to establish special districts which would allow property owners to "ask into" a redevelopment project area, according to the consultant.

D'Amico hit what he called the inefficient use of land in the areas concerned.

Singling out the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. spur track, D'Amico asked if the city could afford to take up so much land with a spur track that serves only one or two companies.

Little Gusto for Live Council TV

The television debut of Pacifica's City Council Monday night was met with little enthusiasm by Councilman Nick Gust.

Gust, who garnered the support of Councilman Stan Farber, objected to the live coverage of council meetings instituted Monday night by Tele-Communications, Inc., the city's cable television operators.

The TCI cameras, directed by an all-volunteer crew, were turned off long before the council heard Gust's complaints.

Gust said it was going to be very uncomfortable for the council members to sit for hours beneath the bright lights required for the cameras.

If the lights are necessary, he said, the city manager ought to look into providing air conditioning for the council chambers, located in the sewage treatment plant.

Gust said Pacificans have turned out in the past in great numbers at City Council meetings when particular items have been of interest.

"If it's of that much interest to them, they should give the courtesy to the council of at least being here," Gust said. "It's the responsibility of the people to be at City Council meetings."

Councilman Farber said he wouldn't object to periodic coverage of important issues. But the constant lights, he said, prevent the council from seeing the audience.

He said there must be hidden costs to the city staff to provide the coverage.

City Manager Don Weidner said his staff was involved in working out some technical problems with TCI and in seeing that the chambers were open early for the cable operators to set-up.

Grady Hester of TCI said there will be live coverage until 10:30 p.m. and unedited tape replays on Tuesday nights.

Mayor Janice Fulford said the presence of TCI was minimally distracting and Councilman Mark Savage said anything that aids public participation in meetings is welcome.

"It's in the public interest that we televise these meetings," Savage said.

A resident, Mildred Simon, said TCI ought to cover all city meetings.

The council finally turned down a motion by Gust that the live telecasts be dropped.

Cable TV: Good and Bad News

By JANET PARKER

Pacifica's cable television station operators — long the target of city-wide criticism — went home with both good and bad news Monday night.

After a 40 minute conference with the city attorney, the City Council voted to return to the cable company $100,000 being held in escrow from a September rate increase.

Then, the council denied Tele-Communications Inc. a second rate increase, citing a list of problems it has had with the company for months.

The two votes put to rest an agreement the council and TCI made last year.

Coincidentally, the council's discussion and final decision regarding the agreement were part of the company's first live coverage of a city meeting.

In July, 1975, the council and TCI agreed that the company would install an expanded 20-channel system to all 10,000 subscribers by May 1 if it were to receive the escrow money and a second rate increase.

But as it became apparent that TCI, among other problems, wouldn't be able to meet the deadline, subscribers pleaded with the council to "run the company out of town." Some councilmen seriously considered cancelling the city's franchise agreement with TCI, a Denver-based firm.

At one point it appeared that at least two councilmen — Nick Gust and Stan Farber — favored finding the firm in breach of contract. But after the litigation session the council returned in unanimous support of both motions.

In its decision concerning the second rate increase the council found that TCI failed to meet the May 1 installation deadline, failed to revise its billing system as promised and neglected calls from subscribers demanding improved reception and other items.

Consulting engineer Jerome Partch of San Francisco, who reported to the council on TCI's progress at previous meetings, said Monday that he tested the system from May 17 to 19 in 37 locations.

"It is my considered opinion that the adjustments now have been completed and that the system substantially complies with the performance standards of the agreement between Pacifica and TCI . . .," Partch said.

He added, however, that his tests covered the degradation to the picture caused by the system installation and did not involve the quality of the picture at the main reception site on San Bruno Mountain.

A few channels continue to be of poor quality, he said.

"These individual problems are not related to the system capability and must be corrected in individual trouble calls by TCI," he said.

The council had a difficult time deciding if Partch's report meant TCI had complied with the agreement or not.

Partch said that in the cable industry, monthly complaints of 1 to 4 per cent of the cable subscribers usually occurs — or

Garbage Increase OKayed in D.C.

Starting July 1 residents of Daly City will be paying as much as 29 per cent more for garbage collection.

Despite requests for an audit of the Daly City Scavenger Co. some of those at the City Council meeting Monday, the Daly City Council voted 4-0 with one abstention to pass the rate increase. Councilman McRobert Stewart was the abstaining councilman.

The increase means that residents will pay $3.45 a month for the first can collected and $1.75 for the second, while those out of the city will pay $4.40 for the first can and $2.30 for the second.

All other in-city rates such as apartments and commercial businesses will go up 27.7 per cent and all other out-of-city rates will go up 29.41 per cent.

The council also voted to permit residents to use plastic garbage cans and heavy duty plastic garbage bags, in addition to increasing the allowance for garden clippings.

Dennis Sullivan, vice president of Capital Real Estate Management Company, the management firm for the Danica Heights Apartments on 500 King Drive, claimed that the scavenger company has a 100 per cent annual profit.

Sullivan said that the five shareholders of the scavenger company received annual salaries of $185,800 cumulatively for the past two years plus dividends in 1975 totaling $66,667 and in 1974 $87,953.

"Why," he asked, "if the firm is losing money do they pay out such large dividends to themselves?"

Sullivan also pointed to promotion and advertising fees totaling some $15,405.

Attorney Anthony David said this was an "extraordinary profit, and that the profits the six shareholders are receiving are more than what the governor of California makes."

Forty-three of Sullivan's apartment complexes, located in five different states, pay at least 100 per cent lower rates than in Daly City, said Sullivan. And, with the proposed increase, he said it would be three times higher here.

San Mateo's rate is $2.04, San Carlos is just under $2, and San Rafael, Larkspur, San Bernardino and Indianapolis all have much lower rates, said Sullivan.

Richard T. Dwyer, accountant for the stockholders of the Daly City Scavenger Company, Inc., rebutted these charges, saying the scavenger company is facing a deficit.

Dwyer cited increased labor rates (pointing out his client's employees belong to the Teamsters' Union while others in neighboring cities are non-union) and the need for heavy capital investments.

Dwyer said his clients expect to be hit with a $3 an hour increase in employee wages, and will have to spend $203,000 by 1978 to purchase new trucks and pickups to replace their 10-year-old equipment.

The original complaint by Sullivan and David had been that the scavenger company's rate structure discriminated unfairly against tenants of multiple family dwellings by levying charges based upon the number of rental units in each individual building irrespective of whether they are occupied and of the amount of rubbish generated or cost, in terms of man-hours or expenses to the company.

Sullivan said that the apartment complex pays a full 20 per cent more per month than does a commercial business utilizing identical scavenger services.

Calling for an independent audit was not only Sullivan, but also Roseann Emerson, a board member of the Fairmont Homeowners' Association, Julius F. Castelan, a retired engineer, and a long-time Daly City resident George Kirchhubel.

In fact, Kirchhubel "political the scavenger company a "plitical organ, that is interested in politics."

This will not be the end of it, said Sullivan, who said he rather than try and do it alone, will enlist other apartment complex owners in his fight to balance the rate structure.

On top of the scavenger company's apparent woes, it has seen no attempt by the City of Pacifica to renew an agreement that permits Pacificans, for a fee, to continue dumping garbage at the Mussell Rock site.

D.C. Split on Harbor Issue

The City Council in Daly City Monday night considered adopting a position that would count them among the growing list of cities — including San Bruno, Colma, Burlingame, Atherton, Menlo Park, Portola Valley and Woodside — that have voted to withdraw from the San Mateo County Harbor District; however, they became stymied in a two-way split.

Voting for withdrawal were Mayor Giammona and Councilman Schumacher, and against were Councilmen Albert Teglia and Victor Kyriakis (Councilman Stewart could not participate since he's on the Local Agency Formation Commission which would ultimately review the cities' petition for dissolution).

Ronald Conway, vice mayor of Atherton, presented his arguments in favor of dissolution of the San Mateo County Harbor District during an executive study session, citing the projected $9 million cost, and the fact that most of San Mateo's residents would not use the harbor facilities.

On the other hand, Charles J. Boerio, San Mateo County Harbor District Commissioner, spoke against dissolution in the same study session, saying that the taxpayers' had already locked in $3 million of their money to the project (which will include renovation of the Pillar Point Harbor) and could not get it back, other than by having it used towards maintenance of the harbor facilities.

He argued that with a mere $700,000 (that could be raised by levying a three-year tax of from $25 to $35 on a $50,000 home with adjustments made upwards or down depending on the value of the home) the district could become self-supporting.

If, on the other hand, the district were dissolved and the project not completed, San Mateo residents could end up paying for harbor maintenance forever.

It looks as though for the time being the council will take no further action on it.

Ottoboni Date in Court Scheduled

Raymond J. Ottoboni, former Colma councilman and police chief, will be arraigned on June 1 in Redwood City Superior Court on charges of voter fraud.

The son of Councilman Raymond D. Ottoboni, along with his father and mother, had earlier been indicted by a San Mateo County Grand Jury on charges of voter fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud.

They will stand trial in Superior Court in Redwood City in early July on these charges.

Both Raymond D. and Raymond J. Ottoboni were charged Tuesday with two additional counts of voter fraud.

Both counts lodged against the senior Ottoboni were dismissed for lack of evidence in Municipal Judge F. Jose deLarios' court in South San Francisco Tuesday.

One count was also dismissed against the younger Ottoboni.

Thursday Ottoboni Jr. was held to answer on the remaining voter fraud charge and bound over to Superior Court for arraignment.

Right-of-Way Action Taken

The city council in Daly City took action Monday on the Blossom Valley No. 2 project that will convert existing street right-of-ways into acreage and redivide real property for single family homes. All this will happen in spite of cautions from the Jefferson Elementary School Governing Board Members that this could place additional financial burdens on the school district and may also prove unsafe because of the present level of sloping that has been done by the developer.

Ryan Unhappy

Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo, newly named chairman of the House Conservation, Energy and Natural Resources Subcommittee, took members of his group and staff to Dulles Airport to watch the arrival of the twin Concordes.

It was the first official action for Ryan since assuming the chairman's post last Thursday, and he apparently wasn't pleased with what he saw.

The congressman said his committee was on hand to observe the safety and noise impact of the jetliners.

"The quality of life in America may be adversely affected by the Concorde, especially for the millions of citizens who live within the potential airport environment of the supersonic transport," Ryan said after the arrival

Bruno Councilmen Chide 'Ridiculous' Transit Service

By RICK SULLIVAN

The San Bruno City Council chided representatives of the San Mateo County Transit District and its own city staff Monday for failing to develop a comprehensive bus route system to serve all major sections of the city.

At one point during the Monday night discussion, Councilman Tony Governale called the proposed system "just a bunch of red lines."

Councilman John Barnard later added, "This plan is ridiculous. If this is the way the routes are going to be, I will not attend the opening ceremonies."

Carle Salley, SMATRANS director of operations, attended the council meeting at the request of Mayor Margaret Kozkowski. She had asked that he give the council a progress report on formation of the city bus routes being designed by the transit district and the city staff.

Salley's report only succeeded in raising the ire of councilmen noteably Governale, who in the past has openly criticized the district.

The councilman charged the district with developing routes which ignore two city neighborhoods and for providing no bus link betwen San Bruno and the City of Millbrae.

Governale also pointedly told Salley he was "disturbed" that the district has developed a less-than-comprehensive system, especially after the city postponed beginning its own bus plan pending the inauguration of a county-wide system by the transit district.

San Bruno is one of the few cities in the county which decided several years ago not to start its own bus system. The council agreed it did not want to purchase buses and establish routes that might not fit into the district's transit plan.

Most cities went ahead with municipal bus systems, and today the transit district is saddled with a variety of buses, some manufactured in this country, others abroad. Some officials claim this might cause a major maintenance problem.

"San Bruno spent a long time waiting for the district to get going," said Governale. "We didn't buy buses and we didn't establish a grandiose bus route. But now we find whole areas of the town which are not going to be serviced by the district, and this disturbs me.

"When you get a city which has cooperated with this district as much as we have you would think that it could come up with something (bus routes) better than this," declared Governale.

He pointed out that no buses will pick up passengers in the Parkview and Lomita Park sections of the city.

Salley said Parkview, which borders Millbrae, would be served as soon as the district developed a plan to link the two cities above El Camino Real.

He also told the councilman that Greyhound currently serves the residents of Lomita Park along the El Camino, and promised Governale that once the district negotiates operating rights for the highway, district buses will service that neighborhood.

Salley said that at this point the district does not want to duplicate service.

"You will have the best bus service per population of any community on the Peninsula," Salley said.

"That is only because everything comes together in San Bruno. It has nothing to do with what the district is going to do for this city," Governale sharply replied.

The council reminded Salley that San Bruno is the hub of the county's transportation network, with San Francisco Airport and numerous freeway interchanges located within the city limits.

Councilman Barnard said he was disappointed in the proposed bus routes. At one point, he said the council had been "stupid" in not buying its own buses and mapping its own routes years ago.

He said the city now faces having to accept routes which fail to serve the entire city and "a bunch of 20-year-old buses."

Salley assured Barnard that San Bruno would be e serviced with new buses currently in use in Foster City.

Governale told the city staff he wanted a complete evaluation of the proposed bus routes at the next council meeting.

"My frustration is that we have no idea why these routes were chosen, what kind of buses we are going to have and what the capacity of those buses will be," Governale said.

"Frankly, I would like to go back to people in the community and tell them what (the bus route) area will look like, instead of having to say they are just a bunch of red lines."

100 to 400 persons in the case of Pacifica.

Assistant City Manager Don Jeffers said complaints to City Hall have tapered down from 35 or more a day last month to about 6 to 10 calls a day recently.

Farber was adamant that TCI didn't live up to its end of the bargain when it failed to complete the system by May 1.

"I still maintain the agreement signed has not been followed through," Farber said. Thus, there was a breach of contract, he said.

The consultant pointed out that some of the problems were the result of hasty installations by TCI in an effort to meet the deadline. Adjustments by the company to individual sets still must be made.

Even City Atty. Gloria Scheid hesitated to say if there was a clear-cut breach of contract. It is up to the council, she said, to interpret the agreement; it must decide if there was a material breach of contract on the part of TCI.

TCI attorney Harold Farrow of Oakland reminded the council that the company invested $1 million into Pacifica's new system, evidence that it was serious about providing better service.

He also said TCI "substantially complied" with the agreement as of May 1. TCI, he added, did not intend to implement the second rate increase until June 1 at the earliest and that 30-day notice would be given to subscribers.

The second rate increase, which council decided to review on Nov. 22, would increase monthly charges from $6.25 to $7.40. There are some 10,000 cable subscribers.

As has happened in every meeting when TCI's future was at stake that residents paraded before the council citing poor reception and service.

One resident, Marilyn Peters, said not one station comes in clearly on her television and that she has made nine phone calls to TCI and been visited by four technicians to no avail.

"I've been patient long enough," she said.

Resident Ethel Marks said it would be a mistake to grant TCI any increase because subscribers have never gotten what they already paid for.

Pacifica Path Revision Asked

A proposed pedestrian and bicycle pathway on Beach Boulevard in Pacifica was sent back to the city staff Monday night by the City Council to be modified and made more economical.

The path has been under council consideration since March, 1975. The cost originally was estimated at $27,348 — $24,500 from federal funds and $2,848 from the city.

However, the path falls in the jurisdiction of the Coastal Zone Conservation Commission and in December that agency recommended additional study and improvements, including drainage and repair of eroded beach bluffs.

Meeting those requirements, according to transportation analyst Kevin Roberts will raise the project cost to $40,823. The city now must contribute $16,323.

In other business the council:

• Approved an automatic aid agreement between the Pacifica and Daly City fire departments.

• Decided to sell the abandoned Adobe Fire Station after Police Chief Mel Nelson said it would cost at least $20,964 to make the facility useable as a police substation manned by reserves.

Forgery Charge Dismissed

A forgery charge has been dismissed against a Belmont man who operates a limousine service at San Francisco International Airport.

The charges against Mahmoud El-Kurd, 30, of 917 Academy Ave., were dismissed in San Mateo County Municipal Court, Northern Judicial District, Dec. 29 for lack of evidence.

A stipulation of the dismissal was that he would not sue the sheriff's office.

The sheriff had said that El-Kurd forged the name of a friend, Issa Arafat Hararah, 28, of San Francisco, to his own Public Utilities Commission permit to operate a limousine between San Francisco and the airport.

The sheriff said he was suspicious about Hararah's name allegedly appearing on the permit because Hararah had been arrested earlier for illegally operating his limousine between the airport and San Francisco.

The sheriff said he called the commission, who told him that Hararah's name was not authorized to be on the permit.

Hararah allegedly told the sheriff that he was paying El-Kurd to add his name to the San Francisco PUC permit.

Hemington said the El Dorado district high schools house some 3,000 students and are fed by 12 school districts with a population of 14,000 children.

Mrs. Forrester said the school board "likely will promote from within" to fill Hemington's position, probably prior to July 1.

An executive session will be held at 8 a.m. Saturday by the board to discuss the matter, Mrs. Forrester said.

She said she thinks it is too late to advertise outside the district for a successor. She explained that most persons interested in moving probably had started looking early in the term and had found other positions by now.

Environmental Unit Goals Told

After months of delay, the San Bruno City Council defined Monday night the responsibilities of the city's environmental committee.

Established as a temporary committee several years ago to issue a report on the city's environment, the committee presented that report last year. At that time the council determined that the committee should continue to function.

A council subcommittee, including Councilmen Tony Governale and Gary Mondfrans, recommended the committee's responsibilities Monday night.

The committee, to be advisory only, will consist of seven members appointed by the council for two-year terms.

It will be allowed to comment on any issue likely to have an environmental impact on the city and must present its reports to the Planning Commission and the City Council through the planning department.

The committee also will be permitted to study regional environmental issues, including solid waste disposal, water quality and supply, sewage, noise, traffic, density and airport impacts.

The council provided that San Bruno's representative to the San Mateo County Environmental Quality Coordinating Council will be a committee member.

The committee will be required to meet once a month and to keep records of its action in the form of minutes, as well as a record of resolutions, recommendations and reports, all of which will be public record.

In other action Monday night, the council introduced an ordinance which includes provision for smoke detectors, re-roofing permits and seismic attachments for water heaters in the building code.

After 45 days, smoke detectors will be required in all homes, apartments, hotel and motel rooms. When a home is sold, or when repairs or additions are made to a home in excess of $2,500, the city will demand that a smoke detector be installed.

Also, the new ordinance provides that a permit must be secured before a roof is repaired. This procedure will allow the city to inspect a home before it is re-roofed to determine if the structure could support the added weight of a new roof.

Good morning, good cooks.

Put on your cookie baking apron, today is the day we bake not one, but two varieties of delicious cookies. Both types are very easy to make and the return on your investment of time and ingredients is generous.

JUMBLES

1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. cinnamon
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Cream the one cup butter and gradually add the one cup sugar. Cream until smooth. Beat in the two eggs. Sift the three cups flour and one teaspoon cinnamon into the creamed mixture and blend thoroughly.

Rub a bit of flour onto your hands, break off bits of dough and roll into balls the size of a cherry. Place on greased cookie sheet and flatten with a floured spatula into a thin circle.

Bake in 350-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes.

If you don't want to bake the cookies right away, shape the dough into a roll (as in making ice box cookies), chill in refrigerator, then cut in thin slices. Bake as directed in recipe.

Makes about 6 dozen.

CARROT DAINTIES

¾ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup cooked, mashed carrots
2 tsp. baking powder
2 cups flour
A dash of salt
1 tsp. vanilla
Grated rind of one large orange
1 cup raisins

Cream the three-fourths cup margarine and one cup sugar, add the beaten egg and one cup mashed carrots, blend well. Sift together the two teaspoons baking powder and two cups flour and salt and blend into the creamed mixture. Stir in the one teaspoon vanilla, grated orange rind and one cup raisins.

Drop from teaspoons onto greased cookie sheet and bake in 350-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. While the cookies are still warm glaze with this icing.

ICING

2 cups confectioners sugar
1 Tbsp. butter
Juice and rind of one orange

Combine the two cups sugar, one tablespoon butter and orange juice and rind. Spread on warm cookies.

Restriction of Public Comment Eyed

Budget Stories Anger SSF Council

By JANET PARKER

A recent public presentation by South San Francisco Police Chief James Datzman concerning possible cutbacks in his 1976-77 budget proposal has infuriated some members of the City Council.

In fact, Councilman William Borba said the coverage of that presentation in local newspapers has caused "mass hysteria" and he suggested that the council place restrictions on the public comments made by city department heads.

Only Councilman Richard Battaglia said there was nothing wrong with individual department heads — including the police chief — answering the questions of concerned residents.

The issue arose last week when CAPTURE, a local citizens crime prevention group, invited the chief to its meeting.

CAPTURE members were concerned about a request by the city staff that all departments cut back their budget proposals by 16 per cent in an effort to balance a $1.6 million deficit budget.

Chief Datzman had said the cut might result in the loss of 14 fulltime employes — including three officers — all 35 reserve officers and the six crossing guards.

Councilmen, however, were angry that information about the budget was released to members of the public before they had had an opportunity to see it.

The council isn't expected to receive the total budget until Monday at the earliest.

There also was some confusion among the council over whether it had told department heads to refrain from cutting personnel from the budget.

Borba said department heads were definitely told to do all they can to cut the budget and not lay off any personnel.

"No department head has a right to put an issue to a committee such as a crime group," Borba said.

"If anything like this happens again . . . we should take extreme action," he added. "I'm very much disturbed about this."

He said if department heads can not work with the council, the council should "rattle their cage."

Borba said he's not blaming the chief. It's just that things are getting out of hand, he said.

Mayor Leo Padreddii also said no staff member has the right to go over the council's head.

"We don't want this to happen again," Padreddii said. "It is not our intent at this time to lay people off."

The council denied any role in directing staff to cut the budget by 16 per cent. That decision, they said, was made by staff.

Councilman Emanuele Damonte added that if every department head appealed to the public for support, the council wouldn't be able to cut anything to balance its budget.

However, Battaglia said the chief merely was showing interested members of the public what will happen if certain cuts must be made.

"The chief did nothing wrong in the comments he made," Battaglia said.

He was angered by Borba's statements about the council's direction to staff.

"I don't think it was this council's direction that no bodies be slashed from the budget," Battaglia said. "Let's not kid ourselves. It's a fact of life."

If there was such direction from the council not to cut personnel, it was done without his knowledge, he said.

Chief Datzman was not at the meeting.

CAPTURE President Barbara Schonig said taxpayers have a right to know what is happening to their money. When she was unable to obtain information from councilmen, she said, she contacted Chief Datzman, who was willing to explain the possible budget cuts.

"If you think this town is naive, you are very wrong," Mrs. Schonig said.

The 16 per cent cut ordered by staff "panicked the public," she said.

CAPTURE member Cecilia Murphy said she would not apologize for holding the meeting.

"If I had my way, we would have a meeting with every department," she said.

DC Man is Held On Rape Charge

A Daly City man has been arrested by San Francisco police and charged with kidnapping, rape and possession of an illegal weapon.

The complex case involves William Daniel, 45, of 29 Garibaldi St.

Investigators would not elaborate on details surrounding the alleged kidnapping of a San Francisco woman and her six-year-old daughter by Daniel.

It was learned, however, that Daniel and another, as yet unnamed, man went to the woman's San Bruno Avenue home on Sunday, May 6, apparently looking for another person.

Police said Daniel held the woman for two weeks at gunpoint in her apartment while awaiting the arrival of the "other person."

During this time, Daniel allegedly raped his victim repeatedly and forced her to commit unnatural sex acts.

Police heard about the incident during a discussion with two men informants at a San Francisco service station and went to the apartment where they arrested Daniel.

County Agencies Evaluated

An evaluation of the effectiveness of various organizations to which the county contributes funds has been requested by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors prior to the beginning of public hearings on the proposed 1976-77 county budget.

The evaluation was proposed by Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald so the board can make a determination if the agencies should be supported in the coming fiscal year.

SSF Delays Vote on Harbor

South San Francisco failed Wednesday to join six other cities in urging the dissolution of the San Mateo County Harbor District.

Instead, the City Council decided it would wait until more cities have taken action in support of or against the district, before taking its own vote.

Cities that have voted to petition the county Board of Supervisors to dissolve the district include Menlo Park, Atherton, Portola Valley, San Bruno, Redwood City and Woodside.

If the supervisors do vote to dissolve the district, the final decision will rest with the county's voters.

The city councils of both Atherton and San Bruno have most adamantly supported the dissolution. The harbor district, they say, is a luxury that benefits only the coastal cities near the proposed Pillar Point Harbor site.

South San Francisco maintains its own harbor separately from the district at Oyster Point Marina.

Atherton Vice Mayor Ron Conway — who urged South San Francisco to take action Wednesday night — said that Foster City, Belmont, Daly City and Millbrae all are expected to vote on the dissolution question in the next two weeks.

For some South San Francisco councilmen, the harbor district has been a sore point.

In 1973, the district provided $25,000 toward the city's $65,000 Oyster Point Marina feasibility study.

In the next two years the city sought additional funds from the district for marina construction. Originally, the harbor staff, according to City Manager Ed Alario, suggested it might contribute $100,000.

However, after several joint meetings the harbor district attorney informed South San Francisco that it would be questionable to participate in the project, Alario said.

Mayor Leo Padreddii said Wednesday it would be advantageous for South San Francisco to wait and see what action other cities take.

"The fact is that we do have a harbor here and we have to consider that also," Padreddii said.

Conway told them that if the dissolution question is to appear on the November general election ballot — as sought by several of the county's 19 cities — the Land Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) must take action on that item early in June.

"It would be helpful for your city's input to be there," Conway said. Conway had said earlier that a vote by South San Francisco favoring dissolution might influence other cities since it is one of the few that maintains its own harbor.

Conway told the council the district is "an unnecessary burden on the taxpayers of this county."

He said the district's plans for a $9 million harbor at Pillar Point — scaled down from an original $20 million proposal — will cost San Mateo County taxpayers $3,400,000.

Other funds, he said, indirectly come from the taxpayers through a Department of Navigation and Ocean Development loan of $4,600,000 and a $400,000 grant for the launch ramp.

"Right now the San Mateo County Harbor District is a sole purpose organization," he said. "If the county takes over the district," he said, "Pillar Point will be placed on the county's total list of projects and be assigned the priority it deserves.

"The harbor district has never done anything for any other city in the county," he said.

Harbor District President Charles J. Boerio said of the $3.4 mmillion of taxpayers money going to Pillar Point, all but $700,000 already has been collected.

The harbor, he said, will generate revenue and will be a break-even project for five years. There will be a slight deficit for another five years and then the project is expected to maintain itself and possibly even have a revenue surplus.

The Pillar Point Harbor, he said, is "financially feasible and economically justified."

The district has a maximum tax rate capability of 3.72 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current tax rate is 2.25 cents and the rate has never been set higher than 3.68 cents.

Boerio said that the district expects to begin participating with some cities in their own harbor projects soon.

Councilman Richrd Battaglia said the harbor district until now has cared only about Pillar Point.

"You're not listening to the rest of this county and that's why the cities of this county are screaming," he said.

Most of the boat owners in this county, he said, have small boats and will never be able to take advantage of Pillar Point.

"Let's pay some attention to this side of the county," Battaglia said.

Alario estimated that South San Francisco taxpayers contribute about $70,000 to the harbor district annually.

Keeping One's Cool In Communal Pool

By JOHN HORGAN
Post Staff Writer

It used to be that the home with a swimming pool out back was considered chic.

If you had a tennis court, that was a sign of definite upward mobility — no matter how rank your backhand was.

The guy with the sauna in his garage was a hot item too — in more ways than one.

But wait. There is a new item intended to charm its way into the hearts of young America.

It's the hot pool.

That's right, a big, wooden pool full of hot water sitting right there on your porch, out in the sun and the rain, in front of God and everyone.

The idea is to fill up the tub with both water and people, unclothed people to be sure.

Then, you communicate.

You are supposed to luxuriate while gabbing with your neighbor.

My friend Dave is going to buy a hot tub for his new San Mateo home.

He says he can't wait to have his first hot tub party so we can all leap naked as a bunch of flabby centerfolds into his tub.

"I may even charge admission," he says with a twinkle in his eye.

Now, wait a second, Dave. Hold onto your drawstring.

I don't mind taking a bath with you and your friends but what are we going to chat about?

I can foresee some anxious moments there in the shallow end of the tub during that first party.

The scene could go something like this:

"Oh, hi there. I'm Bruce of Belmont and this is my wife, Big Willis."

"Pleased to make your acquaintance, I'm sure."

"Say, we were just admiring your great tan."

"That's not a tan. I spilled coffee on my stomach when you two got into the tub and it left this stain."

"We noticed you were reading the sports section when we arrived."

"Yes, I was. But then you submerged all the box scores."

"Is this your first time in a hot tub?"

"No, I majored in communal bathing at San Francisco State. I then did my doctorate work on the effects of the rubber duckie on foreign policy."

"Are you a friend of Dave's?"

"No, I was just passing by, saw the tub and couldn't resist."

"You know, I could swear I've seen you before."

"Could be. I was voted Mr. Albino by the Peninsula Society of Thigh Watchers in 1971. I demanded a recount and lost."

"That's really a terrible twitch you have there in your left eye."

"That's not a twitch. I'm actually sending messages to the housewife next door to bring me a fresh sports section."

"Excuse me, but I wish you'd take your hand off my wife's leg."

"That's not my hand. It's a trained crayfish I brought along for the occasion. His name is Samuel. Don't antagonize him."

KNOW YOUR FOOD

YOUR FAMILY NEEDS ALL 4 BASIC FOODS DAILY

MEAT GROUP

Principal nutrients in food are proteins (amino acids), fats, carbohydrates (sugars and starches), vitamins, minerals and water. Protein is made up of amino acids, which are put together as important building blocks of body tissues. The main structural units of the body are the many different protein molecules that the body makes from the amino acids it has obtained from the proteins of foods.

Major sources of protein are the Meat Group and its alternates. Foods included are: beef, veal; lamb; pork; variety meats, such as liver, heart, kidney; poultry; eggs; fish and shellfish; alternates — dry beans, dry peas, lentils, nuts, peanuts and peanut butter. Foods in the Meat Group contribute the protein, which is needed for the repair of body tissues — muscle, organs, blood, skin and hair. These foods also provide iron, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

Two or more servings of protein foods should be eaten every day. Count as 1 serving: 2 to 3 ounces (not including bone weight) cooked lean meat, poultry or fish. Count as alternates for 1 serving of meat, poultry or fish: 2 eggs; 1 cup cooked dry beans, dry peas or lentils; or 4 tablespoons of peanut butter.

Animal proteins are considered high quality while proteins from vegetables, grains and nuts are generally considered lesser quality. This lesser quality can be upgraded so that sufficient quantity of all essential amino acids is provided to the body. This can be done by combining a little animal protein with the lesser quality protein. For example: dry beans with cheese or a little meat; peanut butter sandwich with a glass of milk. However, in proper combinations, lesser quality proteins can be used as the only protein source. For example, beans with corn tortillas.

A GROUP CALLING itself Santa's Workers is on a treasure hunt. The workers indicate that the Christmas boutique sponsored each November by the Mary's Help Hospital Guild, will have a "bottle table" this year and the search is on for bottles of unusual size, shape, form or age.

Contrary to rumor, Santa's workers are not preparing for a summer rest. In fact, this particular group of helpers will be working extra hard in June and July, and they would be happy to have donations of bottles now, so sorting and pricing can take place before the hectic fall schedule is instituted for boutique workers.

If you have a bottle that you would like to contribute to the guild's sale please leave it with the hospital's director of volunteers, Mrs. Mary McCoy, mark it for the boutique and or drop it off in the gift shop at Mary's Help.

TICKETS WILL BE SOLD following each mass on Sunday morning for the annual Westlake Catholic Women's Installation Breakfast on June 6 at the Olympic Club.

Mrs. James Cann, spiritual director of the Westlake Catholic Women and Mrs. Robert Drucker are chairing the breakfast and Mrs. James Garvey is in charge of reservations.

Tickets will be sold for $2.50 per person. Guests will attend the 9 a.m. Mass at Our Lady of Mercy and then regroup in the country club for a special breakfast program.

DALY CITY FRIENDS of Patti Parks McClain have received invitations to her latest extravaganza, a bicentennial program entitled, "Hacienda Sundae."

Mrs. McClain, former director of the Daly City Community Chorus, is eager to have her former students hear her newest group, the Music Makers of Moraga, perform during the June 6 salute to the Nineteenth Century.

Songs and styles of the "Gilded Age," ice cream sundaes, tandem bike rides, Matt Sears, the magician, and comedy sketches will highlight an afternoon of fun staged to raise funds for Plaza del Sol.

Tickets, $5 per family, will be sold at the entrance, 2100 Donald Drive in Moraga.

MRS. EDNA LAUREL CALHAN of the Pacifica Fifty-Plus Club notes that that group of lively seniors is still a growing concern. During the past few months many new names have been added to the membership roster.

Among those new to the club are Frank Coen, Leslie Carr, Mrs. Ina Carr, Mrs. Charlotte Eichholz, Mrs. Lydia Houpt, Mrs. Edward Jackson, Adam Johnson, Mrs. Darlene Polson, Mrs. Lillian Price, Phidel Sunio, Mrs. Myrtle Trent, Stanley Varner, Mrs. Evelyn Varner, Mrs. Thelma Vautrot, the Rev. Mr. Charles Washburn, Mrs. Eileen Vey Winters and Mrs. Hazel Webber.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE to be affiliated with a group that can take credit for at least 4,526 good deeds in the past nine months. That is the number of official acts of support, financial, spiritual, or emotional, that the volunteers have recorded in the log kept at the headquarters of Friends Outside.

Kenneth Brown tries the hard ones, and the "Music Man" must be regarded as one of the most difficult plays to stage that he has produced.

To grasp his problem imagine yourself whipping thirty-four teen-agers through sixteen scenes of music and acting. Add to that the discipline necessary to create the sets, train the crew on the spot lights, acquire the costumes and apply the make-up.

AS USUAL, BROWN proved eaual to his task. The "Music Man" can be written down as a success. In its production, Brown was assisted by those talented brothers, Ron and Jim Wells, and by their sister.

The only criticism I can offer to Ron Wells, pertains to his casual dress as he led the orchestra and the humility that prevented him from accepting a salute from the orchestra members and the audience.

Indeed, I believe that Brown should take a curtain call with his cast at the end of each evening's production. While it is not a custom for the music and drama coaches to make curtain calls, I, for one, think they should.

For Kenneth Brown and Ron Wells there was frustration all the time the "Music Man" was in rehearsal. Sometimes lights didn't work, singers lost their voices, dancers stumbled and actors missed their cues. But when the show hit the boards it had jelled.

THE BIGGEST challenge that the drama and music teachers in Daly City face is the inadequacy of the stages they must use. The Westmoor High School stage is too small. Often times the sound does not carry beyond the first row. Because there is no orchestra pit, the musicians sit with the audience. There are no rooms where the sets can be places before they are taken on stage and no nearby rooms where the cast can await their cues to appear.

Yet, the Westmoor stage is a castle compared to those in the other high schools. At Serramonte, the teachers, Jan Gaynor and Dianne Streeter, don't even have a curtain yet this year they produced "Mame," with a large cast, and other dramas.

Last year they found success with "Barefoot In The Park" and "The Sound of Music". To do so they were forced to use the whole theatre as a stage. Their stage hands are required to make changes in the dark or with the audience watching.

TO ADD TO THEIR challenge, Gaynor and Streeter sometimes train double casts, as they did for "Mame", thus giving more students a chance to appear. Surely, these teachers are stout-hearted women.

The story is the same at Jefferson High School. There the coaches and their students are hampered by a stage that is so inadequate they are forced, at times, to take their productions to the gym.

The people of Daly City owe their support to the music and drama teachers who train so many young people. These teachers put meaning to Dr. Karl G. Maeser's words. "Teachers who possess qualifications fitting them for their onerous yet delicate and responsible labors . . . like artists may be born but cannot be made."

SPIRIT OF '76

Rich Agrimont shows off flower patch he planted at Westlake Park in Daly City to honor the nation's bi-centennial year. The flower bed spells out "76" in red, white and blue flowers.

DC Garden Club Sets Gathering

Mrs. Frances Kelly, program chairman for the Daly City Garden Club, announced that the last general meeting before summer vacation will be held June 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Coral Room of the Community Center, 144 Hillside Blvd., Daly City.

The program will be a flower arranging workshop.

"This will be one of the work shops offered this summer enabling us to attain confidence in our ability to create attractive flower arrangements for our home, county fairs and in the 22nd Annual Standard Flower Show, at Serramonte Center Mall, Sept. 18 and 19," said Mrs. Peter Alba.

George Panaretos, past director, Bay Ocean District, flower show judge, honorary member of the Daly City Garden Club and an accomplished flower arranger, will demonstrate and speak on basic preparation, materials and accessories in order to achieve the proper symmetrical proportions using various containers and flowers.

Louis Filarski, president and Fiesta garden chairman, will hold a planning session regarding construction of the garden at the Floral Fiesta to be exhibited at the San Mateo Fair.

He also reminds members and those interested in entering to start grooming their plants for the September Flower Show at Serramonte Center Hall.

Training Offered By Kennel Club

The Westmoor High School Kennel Club in Daly City intends to offer beginning and intermediate-advanced dog training classes for pets of area residents beginning June 5 and lasting for 10 weeks. The trainer will be Fred Wills of Daly City, a breeder and trainer of collies.

Classes will be held outside on the summit (the area directly north of the high school building), and will begin at 10 a.m. The class will continue to meet on Saturdays at that time for the ten-week period.

The club hopes that this will fill the needs of those owners who wish to train their dogs. The course will be open to both purebred and mixed breed dogs. It is suggested that the dogs be at least four months old to begin this training.

Beginning classes will be at 10 and 11 a.m. and will be limited to 20 dogs per class, so an early sign-up and registration are urged.

Advanced and intermediate dogs will be trained at noon.

The Westmoor High School Kennel Club has been in existence for five years, and has sponsored seven all-breed and obedience fun matches.

A large part of the proceeds have gone to graduates from Westmoor High School who plan to major in the field of veterinary medicine.

In the past five years more than $2,500 has been given in scholarships. The club will continue to use proceeds from the training classes to further this goal.

Council Faces Federal Regulations

Air Rules Leave HMB Gasping

One of the smallest communities in the county took a swipe at the megalith of federal bureacracy Tuesday night, but the effort will probably not be heard.

At issue was whether the City Council of Half Moon Bay should pass a resolution regarding development of an air quality maintenance plan for the Bay Area.

The plan has been mandated by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, and the city, as a member of the Sewer Authority Mid-Coastside, is seeking federal funds for sewage plant consolidation and updating.

Thus, the federal agency is, in effect, forcing the city to adhere to federal clean air standards in order to qualify for federal grant monies for a sewage project demanded by the state.

"They are jamming this thing down our throats, and we shouldn't have it forced on us like this," Councilman Lloyd T. Cardoni said.

Cardoni found support in Councilman Lawrence E. Alleman, who likened the thickening tangle of federal regulations to a form of blackmail.

"We'd have been better off to forget about the promises of federal funding, and built that plant ourselves," Alleman said. "It's another case of losing our right to determine our future."

Councilman Joe Marmont argued for passage of the resolution, saying it is pointless for a city like Half Moon Bay to buck so powerful an agency as the EPA.

"Like it or not, these are the federal rules, and that's the way it's going to be," Marmont said. "It's either this year, or next — or five years down the road, and they've got you."

On the roll call which followed there was a rare demonstration of council divisiveness on the air quality resolution.

Cardoni led off with a "no," followed by Councilman Melvin Mello, who paused for several seconds before voting "yes." Marmont followed with a "yes," and Alleman's emphatic "no" set Mayor Albert Albert J. Adreveno in the tiebreaker's role.

"A very reluctant yes," Adreveno said after several seconds.

"But I think we should contact our legislators and let them know we're not satisfied.

"We're being asked to be a bunch of dummies up here," he added. "They expect us to bow to every superagency that comes along."

"I don't give a damn if our congressman does get mad at me." I'm not voting for him this time, anyway," Adreveno concluded.

Another item received the flat of Councilman Alleman's sword.

Alleman ordered a letter from Sen. Alan Cranston stricken from the consent calendar for further consideration.

Cranston's letter was in response to a note from City Manager W. Fred Mortensen advising the solon of the city's position on pending revision of federal estate tax laws.

Cranston's letter contained the statement that such laws "should be modified so as to produce more revenues for the federal government."

"Why should the laws be revised to benefit the federal government" Alleman asked. "Why shouldn't they be revised to benefit the little guy?"

The city's staff was directed to forward Alleman's comment to Cranston's office on behalf of the city.

In another item of interest to the Coastside, the City of Half Moon Bay reaffirmed its support of the Pillar Point Harbor plan, currently before the Coastal Zone Commission, and directed that letters be sent to all other cities in the county urging that dissolution proceedings against the San Mateo County Harbor District be tabled.

The city acted after receiving a letter from the City of South San Francisco asking Half Moon Bay's advice on a hearing into the question of dissolution, scheduled for hearing tonight in South San Francisco.

"It's been a long time since we advised the other cities of our position supporting this plan," Adreveno said. "Now might be a good time to remind them."

Accordingly, the staff was directed to inform the county's other cities of Half Moon Bay's position.

39 YEARS SERVING THE PENINSULA

18 Agencies Vie for Funds

Periodically the City Council of Daly City gets a chance to play Solomon and exercise its wisdom in the disbursement of federal revenue sharing funds.

The five-member council must decide what organizations get what share of the government-sponsored money pie.

This year — perhaps the final year for revenue sharing unless the government renews the program — 18 agencies have asked for more than $1 million.

Total anticipated funding under the program is only $224,818, City Manger David Rowe told the council during a public hearing on the matter last week.

As usual, city agencies are asking for the lion's share of the money, with the Public Works Department requesting some $140,000 for items ranging from four pocket calculators ($290) to a solid waste transfer station to be built at the department's corporation yard ($70,000).

Even the city attorney's office asked for $7,500 for re-codification of a new city code.

Rowe informed the council he was doubtful that the city attorney's request was eligible under rulings set forth by the federal government.

More than half of the federal revenue sharing money requests were submitted by city agencies, according to a breakdown report.

The council also must decide what "outside" agencies will be funded.

Those asking for money included the Original Daly City Protective Association, which wants $150,000 set aside to rehabilitate homes in the older sections of the city.

Guadalupe Health Clinic submitted a request for $89,000 to continue operations. If the funds are not forthcoming services will have to be cut back, the council was warned by a Health Center official.

The hearing was continued to June 14 at which time it was expected the council will act on the matter.

Teachers Debate Bruno Firings

San Bruno teachers debated district administrators for nearly two hours last week over the recent firing of 27 instructors.

The occasionally heated exchange was punctuated repeatedly with requests by teachers that the district offer some alternatives "to the drastic cutbacks."

Teachers called cutbacks of instructors and special school programs extreme and unnecessary. They almost begged the administration to provide a glimmer of hope that some teachers and programs would be re-instated in September.

Trustees and administrators firmly held to their position that the district is overstaffed and that the cuts had to be made for the district is to remain solvent in the years ahead. They made it evident there is little possibility those teachers fired this month will return to work in September.

A week ago Monday night, the board dismissed 27 teachers, a psychologist and 10 office workers from the district payroll next year in an effort to bring its budget into balance.

The teacher cuts, in effect, sliced deep into many special programs, including foreign language and reading, plus a program for educationally handicapped students.

Monday night James Kramer argued that the district could look forward to saving next year between $90,000 and $100,000 when some teachers retired and others requested part-time assignments.

He urged the board to take this expected savings, which he said was calculated by the San Bruno Education Association Finance Committee, and "reinstate as many teachers and programs as possible." The committee is comprised of teachers in the district.

District business manager Sherrill Houghton replied that he could not say for certain that $100,000 worth of part-time requests and retirement would indeed take place and pointed out that the district had to develop a budget based on what it knows will occur or can close-to-accurately estimate.

"If we can restore programs next year we will," responded Trustee President Eugene May. "Some programs indeed may be offered, but right now there seems to be no hope; there's nothing in sight to indicate that the programs we have cut will be provided in September.

"We can't act on any of these programs now unless we want to invite bankruptcy," May added.

Russ Hanley, a teacher, presented a finance committee report showing that the district had overbudgeted last year in several categories of the budget, including books, supplies and equipment replacement.

Hanley attempted to show that as of the end of April the district had spent a small percentage of what had been budgeted in those categories.

He suggested that the district not budget so high next year to save money to hire back teachers.

Administrative assistant Robert Barron advised Hanley that between now and the end of this fiscal year most of the funds in the books, supplies and equipment replacement categories would be spent.

Houghton added: "Sometimes we underestimate expenditures in budget categories and sometimes we overestimate. At the end of the year, everything usually balances out."

Building Is Halted

What is considered "new construction" is the key in whether or not construction will continue at the 250-unit, county-sponsored Midway Village housing project near the Cow Palace.

Housing Authority Executive Director W. Glenn Weman was out of town and not available for comment on the ban. The Post was told by an employee of the Housing Authority.

Grading has been underway at the Village site for the past few weeks, following demolition of numerous condemned structures that once housed military families.

Engineer Robert Bernicchi, president of Resources Engineering and Management, of South San Francisco, said the ban "obviously curtails any development on San Bruno Mountain."

It was understood by North San Mateo County Sanitary District plant manager David Gehre that "anything under construction in the areas concerned can continue."

Nick Gust and Enrico Romano to Courts?

What's this rumor we hear about NICK GUST and ENRICO ROMANO, two popular Pacifica restaurateurs who own a goodly portion of the Rockaway Beach frontage (NICK'S, CAPTAIN CHARLES and THE MOONRAKER fly the flag of the Gust family; Enrico owns ROMANO'S, a thriving Italian and pizza spread that's been a bread winner since its opening 20 years ago). Which brings us to the point: After years of touring various golf courses, this dynamic pair purchased tennis rackets. Nick and Enrico make a good match....Nomination for a pin-up restaurateur: PHIL LEHR, who presides over his STEAKERY on the ground floor of the San Francisco HILTON HOTEL and TOWER. County Reduces Shares $100,000

Portending things to come in San Mateo County's fiscal crisis, the Board of Supervisors voted Tuesday to reduce by $100,000 the amount of revenue sharing funds to be allocated for community based social service programs, and trimmed $45,000 from the summer youth program.

"There's not enough money, we have to cut everywhere, we must tighten our belt," commented Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald as he made the motion to reduce the revenue sharing for social services from $800,000 this year to $700,000 for 1976-77.

Supervisor John M. Ward said it may be necessary to even go below the $700,000 figure. He asked that each agency applying for revenue sharing funds be prepared to present the minimum level of financing at which it can function.

The board indicated it might need additional revenue sharing funds to help finance the general fund budget and alleviate a portion of the anticipated property tax rate increase forseen by County Manager M. D. Tarshes.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. said he was reluctant to make up a deficit by use of revenue sharing funds.

"I want to see cuts from the departments and programs," the supervisor stated.

Following considerable discussion, the board approved by a 4 to 1 vote the motion of Supervisor Jean Fassler to reduce the allocation for the Economic Opportunity Commission's summer youth program to $160,000. The program is operating on a $205,000 allocation this year, and had requested $255,000 for 1976-77.

Board members commented during the session of their concern over lack of evaluation of the youth program.

"It leaves us in a perfect quandry," Bacciocco said.

Regarding her motion, Mrs. Fassler stated that, "I think every agency that comes before us this year is going to be cut. We have to be realistic. We can do no better at this particular time."

Ward, who voted against the cut, suggested that the board might reconsider its action and make an additional allocation at the time it receives the recommendations of the Revenue Sharing Advisory Council.

Bacciocco stated, however, that he didn't feel the board should raise any "false hopes" because it will be considering requests from 300 to 400 agencies.

Swap in Works

By JANET PARKER

South San Francisco will gain an additional role in the proposed San Bruno Mountain development if a land swap between that city and Brisbane is carried out.

The two North County cities — at the suggestion of Brisbane City Manager Clark Smithson — are considering several alternative land swaps near Oyster Point Marina.

In all three alternatives, South San Francisco would acquire a ¾-mile strip of Bayshore Boulevard from the Sierra Point landfill to Randolph Avenue.

That would place South San Francisco property immediately adjacent to the 29-acre southeastern slope area of San Bruno Mountain known as "the bowl."

Both city staffs say South San Francisco would then gain rights from the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) to annex the bowl. A 100,000 square foot office complex is proposed on that site.

South San Francisco anticipates receiving from $50,000 to $100,000 in additional tax revenue if that office complex is built.

South San Francisco's Planning Department had already anticipated its involvement in working with the developer, Visitacion Associates, in planning the 980 housing units on the south side of the mountain.

However, the office complex proposed for the bowl would be the only revenue-generating project by Visitacion in South San Francisco's jurisdiction.

Without the land swap, LAFCO could assign the bowl to either Brisbane or South San Francisco.

In exchange, Brisbane is asking South San Francisco for some bayfill land south of Sierra Point to develop within a proposed Marina project.

Smithson told the South San Francisco City Council Tuesday night that he saw the need for an exchange as a matter of "administrative and planning sense."

"It seems reasonable to make a deal that we will both get something out of," he said.

In the long run, Smithson said, the San Bruno Mountain development will have the greatest financial impact. However, he said, he is more concerned about some short-term problems within his city including the marina project.

He said he does not know what might be proposed on the bayfill area that Brisbane would gain in the exchange.

"I'm gambling that the developer will put something more than a parking lot on it," Smithson said.

He said the Sierra Point development is more imminent than the proposed San Bruno Mountain office complex.

South San Francisco Public Services Director Frank Addiego said he recommends giving Brisbane just the bayfill area if any exchange is made.

Other alternatives involve tidelands extending into the bay.

The advantages for South San Francisco, he said, would include the unrestricted potential to develop the north shore of Oyster Point.

South San Francisco also would no longer be required to provide services such as police and fire to bayfill area developments.

With the present boundaries, the bayfill property can only be reached by crossing Brisbane property, although it's actually in South San Francisco's city limits.

Smithson said South San Francisco might be assigned control of the south slope bowl by LAFCO even if the land swap does not occur. However, South San Francisco would have to acquire the rights from Brisbane to cross Bayshore Boulevard onto the south slope property.

"If we give up the road, we will have no claim at all," Smithson said.

Staff members said the road was recently resurfaced and won't need resurfacing again for 15 to 20 years.

The only other potential cost cited was providing a traffic officer on that road. Smithson said the offer his city has there now takes in about $10,000 in traffic citations a year. It is possible the officer actually is paid for by those fines, he said.

The council decided to tour the property May 24 and make a decision about the land swap at a future meeting.

The South City city council had a few questions about the possible costs of maintaining Bayshore Boulevard if it is placed under that city's jurisdiction.

Separate Juries Bill Moves

A bill to give San Mateo County Superior Court judges the option of inducting separate civil and criminal grand juries unanimously passed the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee Wednesday.

The measure, AB 3379 by Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redwood City, advances to the full Assembly in 10 days.

"It may or may not be desirable to impanel a second grand jury, but in either case, the option should be ours," Arnett said.

Presently, grand juries are chosen by lot after 30 names have been recommended by Superior Court judges. The grand jury oversees county government operations and hears criminal cases brought to them by the district attorney.

A second grand jury — solely for criminal indictments — would be selected on a random basis in the same manner as trial jurors, according to the bill.

Only two of the state's 58 counties have two grand juries.

Broadmoor Vote Bill Wins Nod

The Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee Wednesday passed AB 4465, which would ask Broadmoor residents whether they want to pay higher taxes for police protection.

A second reading of the bill could come at any time. It would then be shifted to the floor of the Assembly for hearing, perhaps as soon as next week.

The bill is merely a right-to-vote measure, putting forth the question whether Broadmoor residents would be willing to accept higher taxes to continue the police district as it now exists.

The community has lived for the past year under a financial cloud which threatens to dissolve the district.

Some residents have expressed the fear Daly City will step into the picture and annex the community.

The merits of the higher taxes and the future of the district were not discussed by the committee, which contented itself with only the right-to-vote argument.

Tractor Rolls Over, Man Hurt

David Joiner of 338-A Tunitas Creek Road, Half Moon Bay, suffered a fractured leg when a tractor he was using on an incline of soft dirt rolled over on him, the California Highway Patrol reports.

He was taken to Chope Community Hospital following the Sunday accident.

In other incidents:

Myron Amos Heckman, 31, of 5034 Palmetto, Pacifica, was admitted to the Moss Beach Rehabilitation Center Sunday with head injuries after a bicycle accident on a downgrade of Cabrillo Highway.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in an accident in which an auto driven by Valentine Slastern, 18, of 2520 Lincoln Ave., Belmont, overturned on Crystal Springs road south of Tartan Trails near Hillsborough Saturday.

Although Slastern and one passenger, Tom McDowell, 15, of 518 Highland Ave., San Mateo, were released after treatment at Mills Hospital, Christopher J. Perez, 15, of 416 Turner Terrace, Apt. 1, San Mateo, was hospitalized with a fracture of the right arm, a concussion and scalp lacerations and abrasions.

Gilberto Rio Ramirez, 18, of 529 Hampshire, Apt. 2, Redwood City, was taken to Sequoia Hospital early Sunday morning after his head smashed twice into the windshield of his car when it hit a parked car on Pacfic Avenue near Redwood City

Broadcast Helps in An Arrest

A man suspected of stealing $190 in cash from a Drug King Store in South San Francisco was arrested shortly afterwards by a Colma police officer who thought the man matched a description being broadcast over police radios.

Colma Officer Art Dollosso arrested Bert Peter Ramirez, 27, of 417 Norfolk Ave., Pacifica, when he stopped Ramirez' car near Manor Drive and Skyline Boulevard in Pacifica.

Police said Ramirez also is suspected of robbing a See's Candy Store in South San Francisco Monday in which a small amount of cash was taken.

According to the police, Ramirez allegedly held up the drugstore at 1059 El Camino Real, South San Francisco, at 7:40 p.m. A witness's description of the bandit, which was transmitted over car radios, led to Ramirez' arrest, police said.

The witness later identified Ramirez as the robber, according to the report

Oceana Race Relations Are To Be Improved

The principal of Oceana High School advised the Jefferson Union High School District Board of Trustees last Tuesday that he has taken positive steps to improve race relations at the Pacifica school.

Joseph Conway told the board that a race relations commission will be established at the high school starting in September to help develop a better understanding between black and Caucasian students at Oceana.

The creation of the commission comes in the wake of reports of racial conflicts at the high school and of demands from parents of black students that some school program be developed to prevent future student confrontations.

At a school board meeting two weeks ago, Dave Shelton charged that Oceana had been the scene of some racial violence over the past two years. In fact, he said, his son recently had been attacked during a fight between black and white students.

Larry Moore, representing the Concerned Parents Coalition of Pacifica, called on the trustees to hire more black teachers and black administrators, to develop a race relations program and to offer black history and black culture courses at the school.

Another member of the coalition advised the trustees that the coalition had met with Oceana High School administrators, but said she felt the talks were fruitless.

Conway reported to the board Tuesday night that he had called staff members of the County Human Relations Commission to visit the school and to evaluate the school's existing race relations program.

The HRC staff, Conway said, agreed that the program needed some improvement.

"We have used an ombudsman to be a liaison between the administration and the students," Conway said, "but somewhere the communications broke down."

The HRC staff had suggested a race relations commission be created at the school beginning in September, Conway said. He promised the trustees that members of the coalition would be represented on the commission.

Asked by Trustee John Sloane if the school offered any ethnic study courses, Conway replied that some had been offered up until three years ago. The courses were discontinued because of student disinterest, he said.

Conway said that instead of offering new ethnic study classes he instructed teachers to emphasize the contributions of minorities in all fields of study.

Supt. Floyd Gonella told the board the district would follow its affirmative action policy of recruiting black teachers and administrators as positions opened up at the school.

That affirmative action policy came in for some criticism prior to the discussion of racial problems at Oceana.

James Roman, chairman of the District Affirmative Action Advisory Committee, said his group was disturbed that the board had not set specific steps to achieve racial balance among district personnel.

Assistant Supt. Dr. Hal Tonini told the board he believes the action policy was specific in detailing methods of creating racial balance. He said he had followed provisions of the program in recruiting minorities, including the advertising of personnel openings in all the local newspapers.

Roman said he was unaware the district was recruiting through the media and asked that whatever other recruiting methods were used be reported to his committee.

The board, the administration and the committee all expressed frustration that the decline in student enrollment had inhibited the district in hiring more minority personnel.

In other action Tuesday night, the board approved an amendment to the Students' Rights, Responsibility and Behavioral Policy.

The new policy states that any student found to be in possession of an illegal firearm or found smoking in undesignated areas of any school at undesignated times may be suspended.

Cabrillo More 'Scenic' Every Day

A resolution calling for designation of a major portion of Cabrillo Highway in San Mateo County as an official state scenic highway was adopted this week by the Board of Supervisors.

The resolution seeks the designation for the route between the south city limits of Pacifica and the north city limits of Half Moon Bay, and from the south city limits of Half Moon Bay to the Santa Cruz County line.

The board's action followed the recommendation of the County Planning Commission, but not that of the State Scenic Highway Advisory Committee.

The latter committee had recommended that designation of the portion between Half Moon Bay and Pacifica be deferred until after a decision has been made on realignment of the highway in the vicinity of Devil's Slide.

County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe said he had recommended that the portion along the subdivided area of Montara be deleted from the designation because he is concerned about the "quality" of design review by the county and the Coastal Zone Conservation Commission for new development along the scenic corridor.

However, Supervisor John M. Ward, who is a member of the commission, said he didn't see such a problem developing. He noted that development projects going before the commission must have local approval first before they are heard by the commission.

In approving the designation, the board specified that the planning director and the District Attorney's Office determine if there will be any detrimental effect of the designation.

Linda Mar Renovation Okayed

A $300,000 renovation of Linda Mar Shopping Center — where W. T. Grant's Department Store went bankrupt last fall — has been approved by the Pacifica Planning Commission.

The project must be approved by the Coastal Commission and a hearing is scheduled on June 7.

The plans call for dividing the vacant store to house one new tenant, Thrifty Drug, and the expanded Ross Department Store already located in the shopping center.

Included is a major facelifting for the entire seaside shopping plaza with new signs, landscaping, painting and parking lot resurfacing.

The project, according to spokesman Thomas Gilli, must be completed by fall under the agreement with the tenants.

Gilli represents Norris, Beggs and Simpson of San Francisco, managers of the shopping center.

"We are simply trying to make that a more attractive place to shop in the city of Pacifica," Gilli told the commission.

His firm, he said, is attempting to turn an unattractive, unproductive piece of property into an asset for the city.

A site development permit for expansion of the shopping center originally was approved in October 1974.

However, no construction was undertaken and the permit expired.

Gilli said Monday night that the revenue loss at the shopping center when Grant's moved out was "substantial."

Since then, he said, the real estate firm has negotiated with major department and drug stores from throughout the country in its search for a tenant for that vacant building.

Negotiations with another department store chain to fill the store that will be vacated by Ross are nearly completed and agreement is expected soon. Gilli said he could not release the name of the department store chain until the agreement is considered completed.

Construction, Gilli said, should begin in early July and be completed by late August. The new stores should open by September.

Permit Charges Dismissed

A forgery charge has been dismissed against a Belmont man who operates a limousine service at San Francisco International Airport.

The charges against Mahmoud El-Kurd, 30, of 917 Academy Ave., were dismissed in San Mateo County Municipal Court, Northern Judicial District, Dec. 29 for lack of evidence.

A stipulation of the dismissal was that he would not sue the sheriff's office.

The sheriff had said that El-Kurd forged the name of a friend, Issa Arafat Hararah, 28, of San Francisco, to his own Public Utilities Commission permit to operate a limousine between San Francisco and the airport.

The sheriff said he was suspicious about Hararah's name allegedly appearing on the permit because Hararah had been arrested earlier for illegally operating his limousine between the airport and San Francisco.

The sheriff said he called the commission, who told him that Hararah's name was not authorized to be on the permit.

Hararah allegedly told the sheriff that he was paying El-Kurd to add his name to the San Francisco PUC permit.

Burlingame Expresses Different Interests

Airport Noise 'Not Simple'

Burlingame's interest in a noise abatement program at San Francisco International Airport may not be the same as San Bruno's and South San Francisco's.

The issue, Councilman R.D. Martin said Monday night, may not be as simple as it seems.

The result could be that while noise is lessened in the two northern cities, it might be increased in Burlingame if a change of runway is involved, he said.

City Atty. Jerry Coleman reported he had discussed the issue with the attorney of a neighboring community and strongly suggested the council "seriously consider weighing a delay before intervening" in any action.

"There are many implications," Mayor Victor A. Mangini warned.

Burlingame's interest may well not be compatible with San Bruno and South San Francisco, Martin asserted, because a lessening of noise in the other two cities might mean an increase in Burlingame.

A woman in the audience charged that the airport is not adhering to FAA nor state noise standards, and when a heat inversion occurs "a tremendous noise" results in Burlingame from jets being revved up on the runways—not taking off. She said John F. Kennedy Airport in New York City has been closed at times for exactly the same reasons. She asked why the airport is being allowed to continue to operate when it is not meeting standards.

Coleman said he was not ready to submit a complete report and asked councilmen to withhold action Monday night.

The council did go on record with other cities, however, in passing a resolution asking the Local Agency Formation Committee to begin action to dissolve the San Mateo County Harbor District, which runs the Pillar Point Harbor on the Coastside. The vote was 3—0 with Councilman A.C. "Bud" Harrison abstaining because he is a member of LAFCO. Councilman Irving S. Amstrup was not present.

Councilman William J. Crosby was sharp in his criticism of a recent downtown beautification.

"The sidewalks are wrong; the trees are wrong; the watering is wrong" he charged, suggesting that the least City Manager Charles Schwalm could do was to improve the watering system for landscaping on the street.

'I walked up the street today and looked in a planter and it looked like it was filled with weeds, with some kind of yellow flower that looked pretty raunchy," Martin added.

Bob Fisse, an unsuccessful candidate for the council at its last election, proposed that the city set up a schedule of fees to be charged developers of businesses, commercial enterprises, industries and condominiums for the additional sewage load, traffic congestion and fire protection they bring to the city.

Animal Control Suit

San Bruno to Collect Portion of Back Fines

A San Mateo County Superior Court Judge has ruled that the county must pay back to the City of San Bruno a portion of all fines resulting from citations given for violation of city animal control laws the county collected during the past 20 years.

The ruling last week by Judge William Lanam could bring some $15,000 to the city coffers.

Assistant City Atty. Michael Galligan said the county is preparing the groundwork for appeal.

San Bruno filed a lawsuit against the county late last year, claiming that it was illegally withholding from the city fines it collected whenever a Humane Society officer or a city policeman issued an animal control citation.

The county argued that since Humane Society offices were contracted by the county to enforce animal control ordinances in cities, those officers were county employes and the county could keep all fines collected.

The county pointed out that it had an agreement with San Bruno to enforce animal control laws.

In his memorandum decision, Judge Lanam stated, "It is clear from reading this agreement . . . that the intent of the county was to provide through the Peninsula Humane Society animal catcher and animal shelter service only and in return that city was relinquishing any claims to fees received for licensing animals or for redemption or sale of impounded animals.

"By virtue of the evidence presented," he continued, "the court does conclude that both the city and the county assumed all fines and bail forfeitures arising by virtue of citations issued in the city . . . were considered as citations made on behalf of the city and appropriately divided . . ."

Judge Lanam noted in his decision that unbeknownst to the city and the county, the chief municipal court clerk of the Northern Judicial District determined that the Peninsula Humane Society officers were in fact county employes and thus all funds from citations were credited to the county account.

"This court must disagree with the finding of the court clerk," the judge said.

Judge Lanam stated that the "ordinance providing for the issuance of citations provides that the humane officers when issuing citation are actually the agents for the city, and acting as such entitles the city to a pro-rata share of fines and bail forfeitures."

Panel Sought to Screen Mentally Ill

San Mateo County wants to create a panel to screen persons released from mental institutions to determine if they're really cured and if they have somewhere to go.

County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald revealed today that a special committee has directed Dr. Howard Guerevitz, director of county mental health, to ask the state to recognize such a county panel.

Fitzgerald said hopes of legislation to accomplish the same purpose are dim, so the county is seeking voluntary cooperation from the state.

He said instances of persons released from state hospitals in 1975 who committed homicides sparked the request.

According to authorities, four persons released from hospitals killed people last year, including the son of Fitzgerald's next-door neighbor in San Bruno.

In each instance, Fitzgerald said, the community was not informed by the state that the person was being released.

A countywide panel would serve not only as a notification board, but one which could review the background of the person designated for release. The panel would include a psychiatrist and a police chief.

Fitzgerald noted that the state would still have the final say, even if the county panel recommended against a release.

The supervisor said the committee — appointed by the North County League of Cities — also is studying the possibility of requiring persons released who must take medication to curb their behavior to make periodic stops at clinics to ascertain that the medication is being taken.

Public Asked to Fund Summer Jobs

A public appeal for funds to make up the $45,000 trimmed from the Economic Opportunity Commission's summer job program for youth was made Friday by Clifford M. Boxley, director of the PROBE Community Center in Redwood City.

"I am asking 45,000 or more adults to send $1 to the Board of Supervisors for summer jobs for our youth," Boxley said.

The Board of Supervisors voted this week to cut back the allocation of revenue sharing funds for the program, indicating that other social service programs will be facing similar cuts at the time of public hearings on the proposed 1976-77 county budget.

Noting the unemployment rate of 8.1 per cent in the county, Boxley said the $45,000 cut from the program budget could have employed 93 young persons during the summer, and will deny them a worthwhile job experience.

Boxley is asking that residents send contributions to the Board of Supervisors, 401 Marshall St., Redwood City, 94063.

Boxley himself started the contribution effort, handing Board Chairman William H. Rover a $20 bill on Tuesday following the board action reducing the allocation.

Board Mulls Injunction

A special executive session of the San Mateo County Board of Education has been called for Monday morning at 8 o'clock to discuss issuance of an injunction prohibiting the board from proceeding with acquisition of an outdoor education site.

The special meeting was called Friday by J. Paul Bradley, chairman of the board, following issuance of the injunction by Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn.

Judge Cohn ruled that "it seems possible" that the county schools superintendent, Dr. J. Russell Kent, could acquire real property for outdoor education. However, he noted, the contract of sale for the property the Board of Education is seeking near Loma Mar lists the board as the buyer. This, the court held, exceeds the powers of the board to enter into such a contract.

Presumably, Kent will seek authority from the board at the special meeting to enter the contract himself, thus seeking to bypass the injunction

Bike Plan Approved

A bikeways plan establishing a network of proposed bicycle paths and lanes in the county has the approval of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

The plan has three main features:

• Improvement of bicycle traffic safety, thereby reducing the number of injuries and deaths resulting from auto-bicycle accidents.
and non-polluting mode of transportation.

• Encouragement of a healthful, energy-efficient

• Creation of a safe and attractive alternative to the automobile for those individuals who either cannot afford, or who choose not to drive an automobile.

In addition to a bikeways network, the plan recommends the creation of public information, education and enforcement programs for bicycling.

The plan proposes the adoption of a five-year capital improvements program which would implement the unincorporated segments of the countywide system.

The resolution adopting the plan states that the county shall give priority to those road projects which include bicycle facilities.

The plan, prepared by the County Bikeways Committee, proposes that County Transit District buses be equipped with rear racks or modified interiors to carry bikes, and that the Southern Pacific be urged to accommodate the storage of bicycles on rail vehicles, subject to the availability of space.

Alcohol — A Family Problem

Women and family members whose lives are affected by alcohol are invited to attend a quarterly weekend focusing on alcohol as a family problem June 4-6. The program was announced by Leona M. Kent, executive director of the Women's Rehabilitation Association of San Mateo County.

Speakers will be Dr. Robert O'Briant, director of the Alcoholism program, Garden Sullivan Hospital, San Francisco, and Ramona Belford of Oklahoma.

"Lady on the Rocks" will be performed by a Palo Alto little theater group. Elise Willson, chairperson of the California Women's Commission on Alcoholism, will serve as group facilitator.

For reservations or further information, write WRA, 181 Second Ave., Suite 200, San Mateo 94401.

Outdoor School Site Pact Halted

Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn today ruled that the County Board of Education had no authority to enter into a conditional agreement to purchase 97.3 acres near Loma Mar for an outdoor education facility.

He issued a preliminary injuction to that effect pending trial on the issue.

The ruling said that Supt. J. Russell Kent seemingly does have the power to enter into the agreement. But the contract was signed by the Board of Education.

Judge Cohn, in a 2 ½-page decision, said that applicable state education codes "make it abundantly clear that they (board members) have no independent authority to acquire real property for the stated purpose."

"In as much as the county Board of Education has exceeded its powers in entering into the contract, it is unnecessary for the court to consider the other issues raised."

An unrelated suit challenging the controversial outdoor education project on different legal grounds is still pending.

Presumably, Kent will move to sign the contract himself. He was not immediately available and his assistants were unaware of the court decision until notified by The Times. A reaction was expected later today.

The legal action was brought by the South Coast Committee and others.

The outdoor eduction proposal has been the subject of blistering attacks by the past three grand juries, as well as by the county Board of Supervisors, and other jurisdictions.

Sheriff Appraises Radical Threat

By DUANE SANDUL

Bicentennial radicalism on the West Coast — and in San Mateo County — may not be as bad as envisioned two years ago, Sheriff John R. McDonald reveals.

"We had always heard that this was going to be the big year for radicalism because of the nation's birthday," McDonald said in an interview.

"But here on the West Coast our intelligence hasn't picked up anything major," the sheriff said.

The same does not hold true for the East Coast.

"Some of the Eastern states are quite worried," McDonald asserted. "They feel that the Fourth of July will be a critical time for them, and that they'll have an explosive time with demonstrations and bombings."

The sheriff said that radicalism may dominate the Eastern Coast, if it happens, because of the states involved in the birth of the nation.

"It scares us in a sense in that we haven't come up with anything through intelligence for the West Coast," McDonald said.

McDonald said that law enforcement officials have been unable to infiltrate Bay Area radical groups such as the New World Liberation Front or the Weathermen.

"There's not a helluva lot of activity," he said. "They haven't been active, and that scares us too."

The sheriff noted the scattered bombings throughout the Bay Area, but since the SLA "breakup," law enforcement has been unable to pinpoint members.

Asked if there are any radicals in San Mateo County, the Sheriff said. "There may be underground members of certain groups.

"The things we're not seeing any indications of are any mass demonstrations and the need for helmeted officers. Instead, most of the activity is sneak stuff — like bombings or fires."

McDonald said that in the past demonstrations were generally announced — allowing police to prepare for possible disturbances.

SSF Police Observers View Disturbance

Four "night riders" touring South San Francisco in a patrol car Saturday morning got a chance to feel full force the pressure police sometimes face.

Shortly after midnight Officer William Osborn was called to break up a fight in the washroom across the hallway from an apartment at 984 Sandra Court, where about 100 juveniles and young adults were partying.

When he arrived, Osborn said he found two young men fighting and he broke up the fight. Because of the fight and the fact that many of the people at the party were uninvited, he told everyhone to go home, police said.

As everyone was leaving the building, the two young men allegedly started fighting outside again and Osborn tried to break them apart. One of the two, Stephen Noel Phillips, 33, of 41 Northridge Drive, Daly City, allegedly grabbed Osborn by the throat and tried to hit him.

Police said the two fell to the ground and between 30 and 40 persons gathered around shouting, "Get the pig's gun and kill him."

At that point, some of those crowded around Osborn and Phillips allegedly grabbed Osborn's arm and tried to take his gun from the holster.

It was then that Officer Charlie Domerofski, touring the city with the four citizens who wanted a "firsthand glimpse of what police do", happened to drive by.

Domerofski summoned two South San Francisco policemen and tried to help Osborn hold off the crowd until the officers and police from Colma and Broadmoor could get there to help disperse the crowd.

Phillips was arrested and charged with fighting and resisting arrest. Three juveniles were also arrested and charged with failure to disperse upon a lawful command.

Police said the young man who allegedly had been fighting earlier with Phillips had left the area during the height of the disturbance.

Plans Made For a New Holiday

Plans are being made for the creation of a new holiday for Daly City. The name of this holiday, according to project spokesman Ron Marren, is International Day.

"In this era of social unrest, economic hard hip and racial tensions" declared Ron, a San Francisco and Jefferson Adult School teacher and community participant, "Daly City has become a home to people of all ethnic backgrounds and walks of life.

"We have been able to live peacefully together and to learn from each other. Our children are growing up free of the ugly stereotypes that influence the thinking of so many Americans today."

International Day would be celebrated with exhibits featuring food, music and entertainment from the nations of the world which the ancestors of Daly Citizens came from.

Imported goods could also be displayed by community merchants. "There would, in our opinion" added Rons wife Lillian, a project co-chairperson, "be no better way to celebrate our nations bi-centennial.

Sewer Ban May Hurt DC Midway Village

Unless the Regional Water Quality Control Board rescinds its cease and desist order issued to San Francisco this week, the Midway Village housing project in Daly City may have to be curtailed.

This is the opinion of San Mateo County Housing Authority Executive Director Wm. Glenn Weman today.

In discussions on the ban against further sewer connections in areas served by San Francisco's southeast wastewater treatment plant, Weman said the 150-unit, low - income housing project is "in danger of being defeated."

The plan calls for first phase construction of 150 units in the area adjacent to the Cow Palace in the northeast section of Daly City.

Previously the complex consisted of 436 housing units built in the war years to house military dependents and employes of the Hunter's Point Naval Shipyard.

In recent years it had been partly occupied by low-income residents.

Weman feels the "new" Midway Village is actually cutting back on the amount of sewage being pumped through the Bayshore Sanitary Station into the San Francisco facility.

"We're reducing the tie-in from 436 (previous housing units) to 150 units," Weman explained.

Lumber Kills Man

A 59-year-old lumber yard worker was crushed under 3,200 pounds of boards last Tuesday when a pile of lumber at the Crestwood Lumber Co. 332 North Canal St., South San Francisco, toppled over him, Coroner's Investigator Leonard Lang reported today.

Workers at the yard said theyheard the lumber fall, but by the time they could reach the pile, only the arm of Leonard Hinkley of 6 Portola Ave., South San Francisco, was sticking out.

Efforts of fire department paramedics and surgeons in the emergency room at Kaiser Foundation Hospital failed to revive Hinkley, who was pronounced dead at 2:57 p.m., about an hour after the accident.

Authorities said Hinkley was stacking lumber and a gust of wind may have caused it to fall

MORE THAN GRAFFITI

These Alta Loma Junior High School students are working on a bicentennial mural complete with a depiction of the City Hall — a replica of Philadelphia's Independence Hall. The school was a recent target of vandals who did $2,500 damage but Principal Warren Hagberg said these students are showing pride in their school and for school property. With the mural are (from left) Tim Shaughassy, Sandy DeLosa and Danny Bonaviev, (back, from left), teacher Caro Crumley, Jody Zito, Cindy Paoli and Sue Nolton.

'Brave' Wins Award

Southwood Junior High School's paper, "The Brave," has been rated first class or excellent by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association of Columbia University in the City of New York. This rating was awarded in the 52nd Annual Newspaper Contest according to W. J. Maher, adviser.

A first class rating is the highest rating a paper can achieve on score-book points alone. With a total of 915 points out of a possible 1,000 points, the staff of "The Brave" received the highest number of points in the history of the school.

In evaluating the work of student staff, the judge congratulated the students on their publication.

Also, the judge stated that the publication reflected hours of hard work, initiative, good planning, excellent ideas and the enlistment of many minds and talents. The students were urged to continue maintaining their high standards and that they will always succeed.

In specific areas of evaluation, the judge made the following comments. In Content/Coverage, the judge felt the staff did an excellent job in dealings with the news pages, feature pages, opinion/editorial pages and sports pages.

In the area of Writing/Editing, the judge stated the students have decisive opinions and are expressing their views candidly and forcefully. The judge also stated that the staff did an excellent job in the Design/Display of "The Brave."

The paper's previous standings in C.S.P.A. contests were not considered in the 52nd Annual Contest. The paper was judged on its own present merits.

Supervisor Candidates to Appear on League Panel

All seven San Mateo supervisorial candidates have accepted the invitations by the League of Women Voters to state their platforms at a candidates' night June 1. It is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the West Orange Library on West Orange Ave., South San Francisco.

A similar candidates' night with all seven candidates will be held on June 3 at the Little Theater, College of San Mateo at 7:30 p.m.

Three of the following seven candidates will be elected to the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors: Richard Griffith, James V. Fitzgerald, William H. Royer, Ester Rascon, Fred Lyon, Charles E. After a five-minute statement from each candidate, questions from the floor will be accepted. Ruth Kruindenier of the League of Women Voters of North San Mateo Co., will serve as moderator.

In addition to this candidates' night, a written questionnaire has been sent out to each candidate and their responses have been printed. These are available at public libraries and through the league.

The two questions asked by the League are:

1. What do you think are the major issues in this county and how would you deal with the most important to you?

2. What is the best way to coordinate and improve existing health care in the county?

Events such as the candidates' night and printed responses to questionnaires are done as a public service by the League of Women Voters.

County Reorganization Concept

County Manager M.D. Tarshes's proposal for reorganization of county government functions, including the grouping of certain functions under two new departmental divisions, was approved "in concept" Thursday by the Board of Supervisors.

Board members plan to submit written specific questions within 10 days concerning reorganization details, and Tarshes was directed to submit an implementation plan prior to public hearings on the proposed 1976-77 county budget in late July.

Board Chairman William H. Royer termed the action the "first step" in reorganization of county government, stating there will be "further consolidation goals" through proposed county charter amendments.

Tarshes's plan would reduce the number of county departments from 32 to 19 by grouping several departments under either the proposed new Community Services Department or the Environmental Management Department.

His implementation plan will include job specifications and a method for selection of the persons to head the new departments.

In related actions, the board:

• Approved a motion by Supervisor John M. Ward that consideration be given to creating a "Human Services" category under the Community Services Department to include the Veterans Service Office, the Economic Opportunity Commission, the Human Relations Commission, the Manpower program and revenue sharing for social services; and consideration of coordinating housing and community development programs under the Environmental Management Department.

• Failed to even second motions by Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. that the board appoint an analyst to review programs submitted for board consideration, and that the board "acquire a person to help control the agenda so we'll have more time to think."

• Approved by a 3 to 2 vote a motion by Ward that the board explore Alameda County's system of having a director of program evaluation, with possiblity of considering that proposal for San Mateo County during forthcoming budget hearings.

Bacciocco voted against Ward's proposal, contending that a program analyst is needed now. Supervisor Jean Fassler was opposed, stating that the board needs to depend on advisory committees and commissions.

"I'm not going to support additional staff when we are in a fiscal crunch," Mrs. Fassler said.

John Dern, chairman of the Citizens Task Force on County Governmental Operations, reiterated the group's contention that the reorganization plan does not go far enough.

He warned against "cosmetic nomenclature" of shifting departments without reorganization within the departments and without savings to the taxpayer.

Two members of the Tast Force were even more outspoken.

Evelyn T. Stanton termed the manager's proposal a "band-aid approach."

"We need to look at the functions, the very basic question of what do we intend to provide for the citizens of San Mateo County," she stated.

"On many occasions you have abdicated responsibilies, reacted to what is brought to you," Mrs. Stanton said. "There are problems in the county you are not aware of, and the county manager is not aware of them all. There are problems of morale, dissatisfaction, almost an element of fear in some departments.

"There is a tremendous lack of coordination in the county. You can't get the same facts from every department. There are too many answers based on 'what is it going to do for me', rather than what it can do for the county.

"Reorganization as a first step is meaningless unless you know what the goals are, where you are headed."

Ruth Kokjar said the reorganization proposals of both the county manager and the Task Force have not addressed two "key problems":

• Reduction of personnel which accounts for 85 per cent of county costs.

• A determination of the level of services the county wants to provide.

"The two go together," she stated.

Mrs. Kokjar said staff reduction should be achieved through attrition and staff transfers to other positions which open.

She asserted that the Task Force recommendation for a program and cost analysis staff responsible directly to the board is the group's most important proposal.

El Camino Hurler Whiffs 12

Segelke Heroes Colts Playoff

By JOHN MURPHY

El Camino High pitcher Herman Segelke must have had the assembled major league scouts drooling Friday at Orange Park in South San Francisco.

The powerful pro prospect pitched and hit El Camino to a crucial 7-0 North Peninsula League playoff victory over round-robin champion South City.

The stands were packed and more fans crowded both foul lines for the intra-city clash.

The two squads will meet again Tuesday at Orange Park at 3:15 p.m. to determine which will have the right to represent the NPL in regional competition against Mid-Peninsula League co-championship Capuchino.

Segelke was the whole show against the Warriors. He pitched a two-hit, 12-strike out shutout and smashed a pair of two-run home runs to personally insure the Colts of their upcoming title clash.

The gangling righthander was simply awesome on the mound. His leather-popping fastball, combined with an effective slow curve, kept SSF off balance the entire game.

And at the plate Segelke was equally dominant. His 350-foot blast over the left field fence staked El Camino to an early two-run lead. Two innings later Segelke cracked another drive over the same barrier to up the Colts' lead to 4-0.

Camino put the contest away in the fourth with three more tallies. Designated hitter Rich Bordi lined a two-run shot over the left-center field fence and then Paul Lutich came across on an error after tripling.

Meanwhile, Segelke was pitching hitless baseball. He kept the no-hitter alive for 5 1/3 innings until SSF's Jose Martinez slapped a solid single to the left of second base barely out of the reach of Colt shortstop Tim McGrew.

Segelke also yielded another hit with one away in the seventh when losing pitcher Jim Selvitella lined a clean base hit just inside the third base foul line.

Among the army of scouts present throughout the overflow crowd was the San Francisco Giants Director of Player Development Carl Hubbell, a major league Hall of Famer. Hubbell liked what he saw of Segelke.

"There's no doubt that he'll be drafted somewhere in the first couple of rounds. His biggest asset is his fastball but he has a pretty good curve, although it may need a little work," Hubbell stated.

Segelke was also pleased with his curve ball.

"My curve ball was working good so they couldn't sit back and wait for my fastball. This was my best all-around game of the year," Segelke commented.

South City coach Bob Brian was also impressed with Camino's overpowering hurler.

"That's the best game I've ever seen Herman pitch. It was his day all the way around and you have to give him credit."

Crafty lefthander Matt Allio has been selected by Brian to go against El Camino's probable choice for Tuesday, hard-throwing Bob Humphrey.

Cap Wins MPL Playoff

By STEVE JOHNSON

The victory express that has been Capuchino High's baseball team since the last part of April steamed home with the Mid-Peninsula League playoff title Friday.

Cap beat Crestmoor 4-1 before a sizeable crowd at College of San Mateo to earn a berth in next Thursday's first round CCS Region I playoff game at CSM against the North Peninsula League winner (El Camino or South San Francisco).

It was the seventh straight MPL win for the Mustangs (18-6 overall) and eighth in its last nine. Cap tied for the league round robin crown with Crestmoor and San Mateo, each at 8-4.

"We got into a hitting slump early in the league," said Mustang coach Don Laclerque, "and that made for a slow start. Then it was just a question of snapping out of it. And we did."

Cap, which successfully defended its co-championship of last season, did all its scoring in the bottom of the first inning.

Kevin Cronin stroked a leadoff single through the hole to left. John Leonard, attempting to sacrifice, forced him. Russ Slotnick drew a walk.

Cleanup hitter Kris Martinsen stepped up and hit the first pitch he saw for a triple to the fence in right-center to chase across Leonard and Slotnick. Winning pitcher Al Brondolo slashed a single to right to plate Martinsen.

Brondolo went to third when Jeff Hensel's grounder was mishandled on a force play at second, and scored on Dennis Haskins' sacrifice fly.

Larry Navilhon held Cap well in check after the first, but Crestmoor (15-10 overall) could only break through against Brondolo for one run in the sixth.

The Falcons, who failed to capitalize on a two-on, one-out chance the inning before, had Mike Mooney and John Maxoutopolis single to start off the sixth.

Brondolo picked Maxoutopolis off, but he was able to get back into first and Mooney to advance to third on a Cap error during the ensuing rundown.

After a strikeout, Tony Bolla singled past third to score Mooney. Brondolo then ended the uprising right there on a force and line-out.

Spartans Nip Vikings 6-0

In the under 10's division of the Golden Gate Soccer League recently, Westlake Spartans passed the Viking Rangers 6 to 0. The undefeated Spartans took yet another soccer game, this time from the Viking Rangers.

Pest Detectives Begin Prowling

A team of "pest detectives" will soon begin its seasonal search in San Mateo County for plant enemies new to the state, County Agricultural Commissioner Claude W. Bridges reported last week.

The search is part of the annual statewide Urban Grid Detection Program to determine the presence of pests before their populations have spread beyond a one square-mile area, Bridges said.

The agricultural commissioner, in urging residents to cooperate with team members, said searchers will carry identification credentials. They carry a hand lens, a pocket knife, pruners and containers, as well as a copy of the California Pest Detection Manual.

Bridges said the teams will seek evidence of the presence of insects such as the Japanese beetle, plant diseases, nematodes, weeds and vertebrates which can have an adverse effect on California's gardens and its food production.

Bridges also has suggested that county residents contemplating buying plants or trees from out-of-state sellers phone his office at 728 Heller St., Redwood City, before proceeding with mail order purchases.

Plants purchased outside the state can become a major source of pest contamination in gardens, the commissioner said.

Some of the plants commonly purchased and planted at this time of year which can pose pest problems are tomato, pepper, eggplant, peach trees, gardenia, lilac, viburnum and privet, he said.

Senior Lunches

Lunches for senior citizens in San Mateo County are served Monday through Friday at noon at five sites. Donations for these meals are 35 cents for persons aged 60 and older and $1.25 for those under 60.

Transportation can be arranged through the lunch locations. Here are the locations:

- St. Francis of Assisi Church, 1425 Bay Road, East Palo Alto.
- Fair Oaks Community Center, 2600 Middlefield Road, Redwood City.
- Martin Luther King Rec Center, 725 Monte Diablo, San Mateo.
- Lincoln Rec Center, 901 Brunswick St., Daly City.
- St. Paul's Methodist Church, 500 Miller Ave., S. San Francisco.

Here is the menu for the week of May 24 to 28:

MONDAY—Tomato juice, cheese omelet, cheese, salad, pear, rice, ice cream, milk, coffee or tea.

TUESDAY—Hot dogs, beans, green beans, coleslaw, biscuit, cantaloupe, milk, coffee or tea.

WEDNESDAY—Grapefruit juice, spaghetti, cheese, peas, salad, bread, cake, milk, coffee or tea.

THURSDAY—Macaroni salad, chicken, zucchini, beets, finger roll, orange, milk, coffee or tea.

FRIDAY—Beef slices, cauliflower, jello, cornbread, sherbet, milk, coffee or tea.

Another Plan for Facility

By RICK SULLIVAN

Youth and senior citizens in the City of San Bruno will be offered no programs at a community center at the North Brae School, at least for the present.

Trustees of the San Bruno Park School District last week voted unanimously to withdraw its offer to sell the site to the city and instead agreed to start negotiations to lease the property to the San Mateo Union High School District.

The high school district wants to use the vacant school in the eastern section of the city for a continuation school.

If a lease agreement is signed, it is estimated that the San Bruno school district will receive about $25,000 per year.

District administrative assistant Robert Barron told trustees that for the past year and a half the district has been waiting for the city to receive federal funds to buy the school, but said release of those funds has been delayed pending the completion of lengthy bureaucratic procedures.
